

Manufactured by a professional ISO13485 certified biomedical electrode supplier and factory in Dongguan ,China, this Cylindrical Sintered Ag/AgCl Electrode is made from high-purity silver and silver chloride powder via a precision sintering process to form a stable, conductive, and porous sensor surface. We also offer our specially engineered **ABS AgCl electroencephalogram electrode with 12 claws for biological detection sensor**—designed for EEG and brain-computer interface systems—and complementary Factory customized Ag/AgCl Sintered Electrodes tailored to a variety of biomedical signal sensing applications.

The cylindrical structure can be tailored in both diameter and length to meet specific device integration requirements. Thanks to the sintered **Ag/AgCl material**, the electrode exhibits excellent electrochemical stability, low polarization, and superior biocompatibility, making it an ideal component for wearable medical devices, patch sensors, and bio-signal acquisition modules.

Whether used in EEG headsets, ECG monitors, EMG systems, or neuromodulation devices, this bioelectric sensor offers consistent, low-noise signal transmission even during extended monitoring sessions.
